

THE MURDER MUSEUM

The Murder Museum houses the most gruesome exhibits connected to most foul of crimes. However, there are worse things afoot, as the Chief Curator of the Murder Museum has been found dead in one of the rooms. The suspects are all employees of the Museum and each have a particular room that they are responsible for. The Curator's final act was to fall forward and leave these blood-stained fingerprints on the wall.

Is it chance that has led him to leave blood-stains on this particular picture on the wall, amidst a display of hieroglyphics? Is there a clue here that could lead to his assailant?

