Are you ready for
some SPECIAL EFFECTS
SUPER SECRETS?

Then fire up the Spirit gum and
latex rubber
and turn the page!

Spirit Gum -
special liquid for gluing
on fake hair and
skin parts.

Latex
rubber -
for making
fake noses,
skin, scars,
and stuff.

Hey, Kid, welcome
to my SPECIAL EFFECTS
notebook!

Dante
Master of
FX

If you use any of my ideas, I expect to see my name in the
credits of your movie.

I should tell you right off, I will NOT be giving
you my greatest effect,
THE EXPLODING HEAD!
That's TOP SECRET!

Also, my mom
found out about it
and now I'm not
allowed to do anything
so gross... with
splashing blood and
flying brains and--

HEY, WHAT'D I
TELL YOU, MR.?!?

Sheesh, ok,
mom!

So no spurting blood and stuff... But let me show you how to make ... THE BEHEADED FREAK!

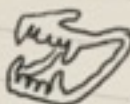

Things you will need:

Styrofoam wig holder - you can find this at WalMart in the crafts section for a few bucks

ping pong balls

cheap Halloween fangs or any fake teeth

black & red Sharpie pens

Craft glue

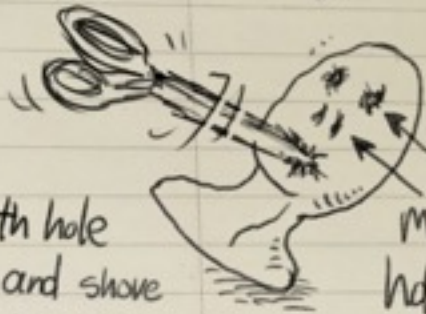

Scissors

OK, let's get this party started!

STEP ① Using the scissors, drill eye holes, nose holes, and a mouth hole large enough to hold the fangs.

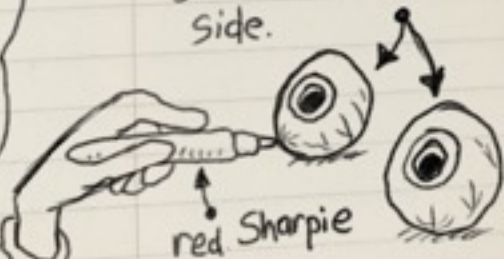

STEP ② Fill the mouth hole with glue and shove the fangs in place.

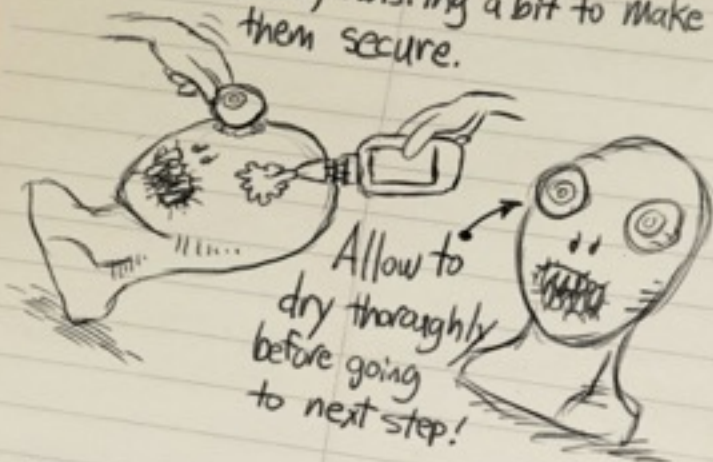

don't make these holes too big!

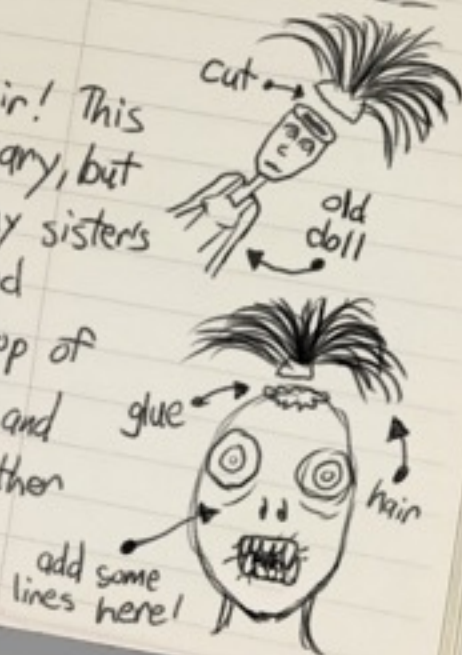

STEP ③ Draw pupils on ping pong balls with black Sharpie, then a red circle around pupil, and maybe some veins on the side.

STEP ④ Fill the eye holes with glue and press the pingpong balls in place, twisting a bit to make them secure.

STEP ⑤ Adding hair! This part isn't necessary, but I took one of my sisters old doll's hair and glued it to the top of THE FREAK'S head, and I think it adds another layer of weird!

And now the fun part...
Take the completely
finished BEHEADED FREAK
and put it on a plate...

Then surround the
neck with lettuce,
tomatoes, and other
salad stuff...

... And then we put the BEHEADED FREAK FEAST
in the place where it
will be best appreciated!

GAHHHHHH!
DANTE! WHAT DID
I TELL YOU ABOUT
THESE HEADS?!

You said no exploding
heads, Mom!
